SALES & MARKETING SOLUTIONS

The Challenge

In 1999, the Client partnered with Optus to wholesale Internet Protocol (IP) Services to middle-tier ISPs and voice service providers in Queensland, and extended its market to Sydney in 2006. The Sydney operation did quite well in the first five years, maintaining a good number of customers.

However, the following years saw the Sydney operation fall into a predicament. Annual ROIs barely moved up as in-house sales and marketing schemes became ineffective in acquiring new customers. The Client knew that in order to increase their clientele list, more advanced sales and marketing methods and tools were needed. But such requirement further led them to another challenge: they were not equipped with the best tactics and tools that would scale up the sales numbers.

After some foresightful study, the Client took a backseat from the situation and decided to outsource their sales and marketing efforts with Callbox.

The Solution

Callbox and the Client were a match made in heaven.

The first project was a single seat, 3-month appointment setting campaign that ran in a very modest, but effective way.

The database, containing specific zip codes from the Sydney area, was kept accurate by both Callbox and the Client by regularly washing and profiling the contacts. The process saved much quality time to reach more prospects with each call.

Along with the managed database, the Client worked closely with the agent by providing insights on how to carry out substantial pitches about the product's benefits through promotions and great deals, while allowing the agent to keep her fundamental appointment setting skills, resulting to quality leads.

Moreover, the Callbox Pipeline marketing automation features like lead management, campaign monitoring and lead nurturing brought so much confidence to the Client. This dependable platform served as the sole reference for them to monitor prospecting calls, follow-up emails, and booked appointments, thereby, for most of the time, not requiring any further verbal discussion on campaign status and plans of action at all. As per the client, "it's a neat diary".

The Benefits

Through the Callbox multi-channel marketing program and the Callbox Pipeline, the team booked 24 appointments in the first two months of the the three-month campaign period - good news not only to the company's directors but most especially to giant partner Optus. The said number of appointments represented a significant 62% surge from their average leads percentage in the last three years.

But the best was yet to come...

On the 3rd month, things got off to a flying start as sale after sale came in.

SEPTEMBER 4, 2014

"Hi Team, FYI, we are about to get our first large deal signed off. Thank you and your team for the fantastic result. Keep them coming!"

SEPTEMBER 17, 2014

"Hi Team, I hope all is well. Some more good news, I have converted another lead this week. Please pass on my thanks to the team & keep up the good work!"

JANUARY 21, 2015

"Team, What a great way to start the New Year! Thank you very much."

Callbox's multi-channel marketing program and the Callbox Pipeline were just exactly the perfect pairing of strategy and tool that the Client needed to achieve 33% sales increase in 6 months time. After two campaign periods that closed 3 large multinational deals, its web design sister company, signed up for a lead generation campaign with Callbox.

As per the Client, the achievement seeded their trust and confidence in Callbox, urging them to refer a friend company to sign up for an appointment setting campaign in 2015. Interestingly, the referred peer is also an Optus partner like them, who said that the Client wished them to experience the same success they had with Callbox.
